

Doctor Manuel Lionel González del Rosario

Other Specialties

Education and Specialty

Doctor González del Rosario received his diploma of Medical Surgeon at the Metropolitan Autonomous University, Xochimilco Unit, in Mexico, in 1984. In 1993, attended the Medical Services of the DDF, to become a Specialized Physician in Medical Surgical Emergencies, in México DF. In the same year attended a course in Medical Shock Trauma Acute Resuscitation at the Washington Hospital Center. In 1996, attended a course for instructors in Cardio – cerebral – pulmonary resuscitation, in Acapulco, México. Attended the ATLS course at the University of Panama, in 2001. In 2003 attended the Medical Aero Transportation Seminar at the National Training Center of the Panamanian Red Cross.

Major Positions Held

Doctor González has been the coordinator of the School of Medicine at the Columbus University, in Panama. In 1999 he was the Assistant Professor for the Medical Emergencies Technicians. In 2003, served as professor at a post graduated course of Emergencies and Trauma, at the Nurse School of the University of Panama, as an assistant professor at the University of the Americas, for students majoring in Emergencies and Disasters and as Chief of Education and Investigation at the Doctor Arnulfo Arias Madrid Metropolitan Hospital Complex of the Caja del Seguro Social.